

Our 'Pain into Power' support lines are open!

About our 'Pain into Power' Phone Support Service

Everyone's experience of sexual abuse is different. The Maggie Oliver Foundation helps survivors transform their own 'pain into power', so each can move forward on their personal journey. Without support, survivors are often isolated and alone, with no knowledge of where to turn for the help and advice they need to begin rebuilding their shattered lives. Our 'Pain into Power' support service provides a safe place for survivors to be heard.

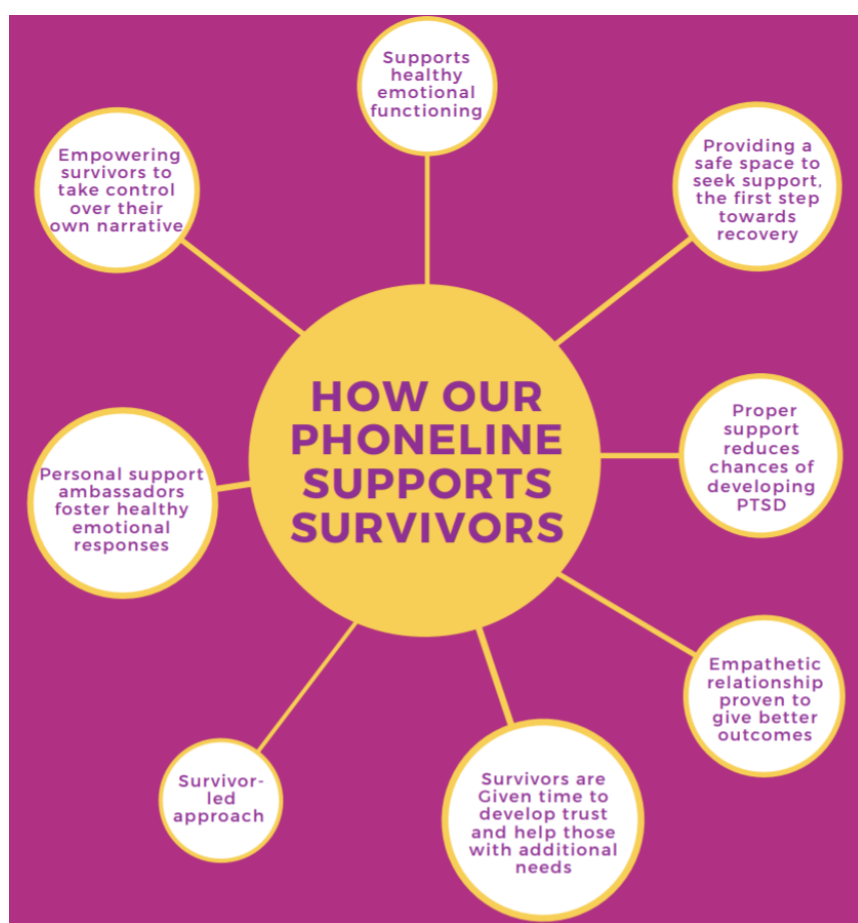

Our fully trained and supervised volunteers provide ongoing support, a listening ear and signposting to relevant external services. Our unique approach ensures that each survivor works with the same volunteer throughout their entire engagement with the Foundation. The feedback we have received on our approach reinforces our belief that survivors benefit from developing that trusting 1:1 relationship

If you, or someone you know, needs our support, please contact help@themaggieoliverfoundation.com or visit our website at www.themaggieoliverfoundation.com where a member of our team will treat you with kindness and compassion, and help you on your journey towards empowerment and transforming your 'Pain into Power'.

Maggie is best known as the Detective-turn-Whistleblower who resigned from Greater Manchester police in late 2012 in order to expose the now infamous Rochdale Grooming Scandal.

Maggie's relationship with the victims of child grooming continues to this day, still fighting for justice for survivors of childhood sexual abuse throughout the UK.

This has led to The Maggie Oliver Foundation being set up with the focus on helping survivors move forward with their lives and 'Transform their Pain into Power'.

Survivors of all backgrounds can now contact us via our website and by contacting help@themaggieoliverfoundation.com and we will help you to access support, legal advice, CICA compensation, therapy, training and education.

Our amazing team all share the same values of kindness, empathy, human decency and a fierce determination to make a real difference in the lives of Adult survivors of sexual abuse.

Our 'Pain into Power' service means survivors are no longer alone, isolated and forgotten

We are here to help and to listen, and together we will change our world for the better.
